

Abstract

A schedule transmission system comprises a schedule transmission device on a client side, and a schedule transmission device on a server side. The schedule transmission device on the server side sends a user a schedule and an advertisement matching with the user's preference. The schedule transmission device on the client side receives the schedule and the advertisement. The advertisement is notified to the user in the manner of being included in the schedule according to its target time.